

CastleQuest Discovery Library™

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

“Defending Electronic Mail as Evidence—The Critical E-Discovery Questions” Published

Reston, VA—January 15, 2009 The CastleQuest Discovery Library (www.cqdiscovery.com), the publishing division of Waters Edge, announced the release of Defending Electronic Mail as Evidence—The Critical E-Discovery Questions. Over 150 pages, the book presents the first comprehensive, integrated asset that combines the legal and technology knowledge required for companies to defend electronic mail offered for the truth.

“CastleQuest publications meet the demanding needs of any professionals challenged to manage digital information in the 21st century,” Jeffrey Ritter, CEO of Waters Edge, observed. “Each asset delivers pragmatic, authoritative knowledge that focuses on knowing the right questions to be asked—and answered. Our tools deliver the same knowledge that we delivered in training to hundreds of professionals last year—tools described by them as ‘remarkable, awesome, and invaluable!’”

Defending Electronic Mail as Evidence—the Critical E-Discovery Questions includes:

- A focused, “plain English” executive guide to critical issues, presented in a familiar FAQ format.
- Over 40 different CastleQuest Discovery Maps™, enabling teams to conduct powerful, intensive assessments and process planning for all aspects of managing electronic mail as evidence.
- Model Practice Tools for lawyers and auditors, including:
 - A Model Deposition of 200+ questions, structured and comprehensive, which a records custodian must be prepared to answer under oath.
 - A Model Process Checklist, detailing the steps required to preserve electronic mail against unauthorized alteration or destruction.
 - A Model Spreadsheet, for calculating the costs of proving the truth when e-mail is not admissible as evidence.
- A Legal and IT Resources Inventory, listing the critical legal sources and technology standards against which e-mail management processes will be evaluated.

“Lawyers, records managers, government lawyers, security managers—these professionals have already been purchasing this book prior to its launch. We have truly produced a series that serves the needs of all of those responsible for managing digital information,” Ritter observed. The CastleQuest Discovery Library will be publishing a new book approximately every six weeks. Each book will be announced at www.cqdiscovery.com.

ABOUT THE CASTLEQUEST DISCOVERY LIBRARY and WATERS EDGE

The CastleQuest Discovery Library publishes authoritative, pragmatic knowledge resources, books, maps and practice tools for professionals managing electronic information. As the publishing division of Waters Edge Consulting, LLC, the CastleQuest Discovery Library presents the same content and intuitive, powerful tools for navigating the complexities of digital information successfully used by Waters Edge in training lawyers and information professionals around the country. Waters Edge is also offering that content through the CastleQuest online training courses.

Waters Edge is committed to enabling organizations and systems to develop and maintain trusted information systems and trusted digital assets. For more information, visit Waters Edge at www.wec-llc.com.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION:

Jeffrey Ritter, Esq., CEO

jeffrey@wec-llc.com

703.912.6810

David Gaston, Esq., Director

dgaston@wec-llc.com

770.312.2993